CBRN Hotline Advice Service

A CBRN event, however it occurs has the ability to cause both short and long term effects on people, buildings, infrastructure and the surrounding areas. In some cases the effects are immediate and in others can take days, weeks, months or years to manifest. Taking appropriate countermeasure action quickly, particularly where people are concerned can have a major impact on the survivability of any casualties.

Seeking advice from a dedicated credible source via a telephone or other multimedia system prior to, or in the immediate aftermath of the event or for longer term solutions such as health care advice and protective equipment can be a vital element in coping with such an incident.
